PREFACE

The objects of the British National Bibliography are to list every new work published in Great Britain, to describe each work in detail and to give the subject matter of each work as precisely as possible. The work is carried out at the British Museum, where copies of all new books must be deposited by law. It is done by a team of fully qualified bibliographers with the resources of the British Museum at its disposal and every endeavour is made to ensure the accuracy of the information given.

A few classes of publications are intentionally excluded, they are:

- (a) Cheap novelettes
- (b) Periodicals (except that the first issue of a new periodical and the first issue of a periodical under a new title are included)
- (c) Music (listed separately in the British Catalogue of Music published quarterly)
- (d) Maps
- (e) Certain Government publications†

Hints for tracing information

This bibliography is in two sections: in the first, or Subject Section, the entries are arranged according to a system of subject classification; in the second the entries are arranged alphabetically. The fullest information about a book is given in the Subject Section including the fullest form of an author's name, the full title, the number of pages, the kind of illustrations, the size and the series as well as the edition, publisher, price and date of publication. A shorter entry is given in the Alphabetical Section under the name of the author, including the short title, edition, editor or translator, publisher and price.

†A large selection of Government publications is included, but the following categories of less general interest are not:

Parliamentary Papers.

House of Lords Papers and Bills; House of Commons Bills; House of Commons Papers (except Civil and Military estimates, Civil appropriation accounts, Reports and accounts of nationalised industries and undertakings, and Reports of consultative committees); such Command Papers as International agreements of limited interest, Diplomatic exchanges of notes and Diplomatic conventions, Protocols, Treasury minutes and drafts, frequent periodic statements such as Housing returns; Explanatory memoranda such as those on hydro-electric schemes; Local acts; Private acts; and Church Assembly measures.

Non-Parliamentary Papers.

Such routine administrative publications as: Accounts of specific funds; Amendment lists; Appeals, Awards; Circulars; Decisions of Commissioners of the Ministry of Pensions and National Insurance; Examination papers; Forms; Licences; Memoranda; Minutes of evidence; Notices; Orders; Proceedings and decisions of tribunals; Regulations; Returns; Specifications; Tax case reports; and Warrants.

Author

When the author of a book is known look under his name in the Alphabetical Section. The information given here will be adequate for most purposes. If the fullest information about a book is required, turn to the entry in the Subject Section. This is easily found from the reference number at the end of the author entry. This reference number has two parts. The first is the part to be noted and is read as a decimal number. Thus, for example, the number 621 will be found after the number 598.2942 and before the number 621.384. A very short acquaintance will make the order of the reference numbers simple to follow. A few signs are also used whose order will become familiar. They are the colon (:), a stroke (/) and square brackets ([]). Thus 621:620 will be found immediately after 621 and before 621.0; 613/614 will be found before 613; and 621.[1] will be found after 621.0 and before 621.1. The second part of the reference number—the number in round brackets beginning (B58-)—is the book's serial number. Serial numbers identify every British publication recorded in the British National Bibliography.

In the case of compilations of works by several authors, the entry in the Alphabetical Section may be found under the editor or compiler. Sometimes entries are made under the names of countries and cities which are considered to be the authors of their official publications. Transactions, reports and journals of societies are entered under the name of the society, and anonymous works, periodicals and some year books under the first word of the title which is not an article.

Title, Series, Editors and Translators

Entries are made in the Alphabetical Section under the titles of all works, so that if you do not know the author of a work it can be found by looking up its title in the Alphabetical Section.

If you do not know the author or the title, it may still be possible to trace the work if the name of its editor or translator or series is known.

Subject

One of the most important aspects of this bibliography is its exhaustive index to the subject matter of books. The Subject Section itself displays the works on a subject in such a way that the whole field of literature on a subject can be easily perused. The Alphabetical Section lists all the subjects found in the Subject Section and shows by means of the code number where books on those subjects are listed in the Subject Section. For example, in the Alphabetical Section under the word Africa will be found a full list of the places in the Subject Section where books in any way concerned with Africa may be found, thus:

Africa	916
Africa: Agriculture	630.96
Africa: Animals	591.96
Africa: Anthropology	572.96
Africa: Big game hunting	799.26096
Africa: British colonies	325.342096
Africa: Cocoa: Marketing: Economics	338.17374[1]
Africa: Education	370.96
Africa: Fertilisers: Agriculture	631.8196
Africa: History	960
and so on

If you turn to the number 960 (which is the decimal code number given against the entry Africa: History) you will find a list of books dealing with the history of Africa and of the individual territories which comprise it.

Explanation of abbreviations

In order that the fullest description of each book may be given concisely in the Subject Section certain abbreviations and conventions have been used. The chief of these are given below and it will be found that, if they are understood, a very precise picture of a work can be formulated, and its suitability to a special need satisfactorily assessed.

Author

The name of the author, which appears at the head of each entry, is not repeated after the title of the book, unless the form of name on the title-page differs seriously from that given at the head of the entry.

Publisher and Place of Publication

The place of publication is always given before the name of the publisher thus:

Readiness for school beginners. London, Harrap.

Where there are two publishers they are shown thus:

The College Board: its first fifty years. New York, Columbia U.P.; London, Oxford U.P.

Prices

Prices given are those current at the time of the appearance of an entry in the Weekly List. Prices marked with an asterisk are converted from foreign currencies and may be subject to an additional charge for importing.

Date of Publication

Every effort is made to ascertain the exact month and year of publication of a work and when ascertained they are shown thus:

Mar 1958.

If the precise date of publication cannot be ascertained the following conventions are used:

Mar [1958] the month and year of publication have been supplied by the publisher but the year does not appear in the imprint of the book itself.

[^dMar] 1958 the month of publication has not been supplied by the publisher but the year of publication appears in the imprint of the book itself. [^dMar] means deposited in the British Museum in March.

[^dMar 1958] neither the month nor year of publication has been supplied by the publisher and the year of publication does not appear in the imprint of the book itself. [^dMar 1958] means deposited in the British Museum in March 1958.

1957 [i.e. Mar 1958] means that the book bears the date 1957 in its imprint but was actually published in March 1958.

[^cU.S. 1958] means that the book bears no date in its imprint but was copyrighted in the United States in 1958.

Collation

The collation is that part of the entry which describes the physical make-up of the book and is in italic type at the end of the entry. The abbreviations used are:

v. volumes.

p. pages. The preliminary pages, if they are separately numbered, are shown separately. For example, vii,222*p.* means seven preliminary pages numbered with roman numerals and two hundred and twenty-two pages of text.

illus. illustrations in the text.

col.illus. coloured illustrations in the text.

plates illustrations independent of the text and generally on art paper.

diagr. diagrams.

bibliog. list of books or references used by the author or recommended by him for further study.

cm. centimetres—used to give the height of a book.

Sd. sewed, i.e. paper covers.

Pb. paper boards.

Lp. limp covers.

Where no indication is given as to the kind of binding it is taken to be cloth boards.

For example, the following entry:

JUDGE, Arthur William Automobile engine overhaul: a practical handbook for service and maintenance engineers and all car owners. 4th
 ed. London, Pitman, 15/-. Jan 1958. v,234p. illus., tables, diagrs. 19cm. (Automobile maintenance series)
 Previous ed. 1948. (B58-2048)

means

Automobile engine overhaul: a practical handbook for service and maintenance engineers and all car owners by Arthur William Judge, now in its 4th edition. Published in London by Pitman at 15/- in January 1958. It has five preliminary pages and 234 pages of text which is provided with illustrations, tables and diagrams. It is 19 centimetres high, i.e. crown octavo, and is bound in cloth boards (no other kind of binding being specified). It is one of the works in the Automobile maintenance series. The previous (i.e. 3rd) edition was published in 1948. The serial number in the British National Bibliography of the present edition is B58-2048.

NELSON

Nelson's Atlas of the Bible

THE TIMES LITERARY SUPPLEMENT 'The Atlas is not exactly what many English readers may expect, a collection of maps, but something much wider in scope. The reviewer does not hesitate to say that this is the best work of its kind known to him and that it is absolutely indispensable to any intelligent study of the Bible, whether privately or in schools and universities.'

THE TIMES EDUCATIONAL SUPPLEMENT 'This is a superb atlas, but also much more. No school which takes religious knowledge, or ancient history, seriously, can afford to be without this book. And anyone who really wants to gain the general sense of the Bible would do well to sell several books on the Old Testament and buy it.'

THE SPECTATOR 'This very magnificent book is modestly described as an atlas, but it is far more than that. It must be classed among the most remarkable achievements in the sphere of serious Biblical study, and it will prove invaluable to the scholar as well as the general reader. Its influence for good must be incalculable, and no one who gives his full attention to its perusal can fail to be enthralled.'

THE CHURCH TIMES 'An atlas by its very title must first invite judgment on its maps. Here there are thirty-five of them, in eight colours, and it would be hard to find their equal for lucidity, accuracy and charm . . . This series of vivid maps is a joy to use.'

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD 'The popular conception of an atlas is a collection of maps bound together; but this magnificent production is at once history, theology, archaeology, geography and photography. Probably never before has such an attempt been made to give authenticity to the sacred landmarks of the Bible . . . This is a truly monumental production.'

THE TABLET 'The title Atlas should not mislead anyone: it is in fact a handbook or guide to the Bible. The whole book, maps, text and illustrations, is beautifully produced, well selected . . . Magnificent full-page photographs.'

35 maps in 8 colours, 2 endpaper maps in 6 colours, 408 photographs in gravure, 60,000-word text, 26-page

Atlas of the Early Christian World

THE CHURCH TIMES 'This superb volume, which is extremely cheap at the price, is very much more than a collection of maps. Like its predecessor from the same enterprising publishers, the Atlas of the Bible, it aims far higher than any traditional atlas and affords a far richer feast . . . This unique production will prove to be of the greatest possible value, for years to come.'

THE SPECTATOR 'A really sumptuous book . . . Actually, it is much more than an atlas . . . This is one of the best books on its theme which I ever remember seeing.'

THE NEW STATESMAN 'The brilliance with which the illustrations have been chosen and presented may, perhaps, tend to overshadow the immense value of the atlas as a work of specialised reference and general enlightenment. In particular the maps, admirably clear, while being assuredly of the utmost value to the specialist, are of absorbing fascination for the general reader.'

THE TABLET 'To anyone who knows Father Grollenberg's Atlas of the Bible, no description of this book will convey more than the statement that it is a worthy, and perhaps more than worthy, successor . . . The authors, publishers and translators are all to be congratulated.'

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD 'A noble sequel to the Atlas of the Bible . . . It is extremely difficult to write of the present work without being in danger of exhausting every superlative term in praise of this well-nigh incredible achievement . . . This epoch-making work . . . must remain the standard work for all time.'

TIME AND TIDE 'The publication . . . of Grollenberg's Atlas of the Bible, gave a new meaning to the word "atlas" and freed it altogether from the limited scope of a collection of maps. Now the same publishers . . . have provided a companion volume, which . . . does for the first six centuries of Christian history what the earlier book so triumphantly achieved for the Bible . . . It would be hard to exaggerate the beauty of this Atlas.'

extracts from Early Christian writings
